

THE NEWS IN PERSPECTIVE

By PAUL PULITZER

Based upon lurid reports published in the Belgian weekly, Zondag Nieuws, and in the sensationalism-prone, London Sunday Express, the National Tattler recently hit the stands with a story headlined as follows: "PRESIDENT KENNEDY SURVIVED DALLAS!" While the headline is positive, the story leaves a lot to be desired. Nevertheless the paper goes on to report that JFK survived the assassination attempt, became a human vegetable as a result of it, was secretly transported to a private clinic on one of Ari's islands, died about a year ago there, and was then buried at sea by Jackie and Ted. It is alleged that this report came from an eye witness. Maybe, so. But, this latest addition to the Kennedy assassination myths is another example of what happens when the public's right to know the truth is abused by an unresponsive government and administration. As time passes on, the rumors explode into wild allegations. For this development in American society, only the Liberal Establishment can be blamed. For, while outdoing itself in stealing and publishing the Pentagon Papers, allegedly on behalf of the American people but most assuredly to discredit the Pentagon, the same power-hungry zealots condone the Kennedy family's refusal to make public those mysterious documents buried in the depths of the National Archives. Those papers do not belong to the Kennedys. They belong to the American people. They should be exhumed and made public. Once and for all, the Kennedy Murder Case should be laid to rest.

Well, Apollo 15 is on its way. At this writing, all is well. However, when will Washington tell the American people, and the American taxpayer in particular, what is up there on the moon so vital to the welfare and security of the United States to warrant the investment and the risk?

The parliamentarians of the Council of Europe, who forced Greece to resign because the new government in Athens refused to take it easy on revolutionaries, recently adopted a new European anthem. As yet, it has no lyrics. The music, however, is Ludwig Von Beethoven's "Ode to Joy." Orders have gone out all over Europe that this anthem must be introduced via all medias of communications. First, the Council of Europe adopted a flag of its own. Now, it has its anthem. Soon, all Europe will find itself collectivized within a supranational organization run by the European branch of the Liberal Establishment.

The Associated Press claims the biggest 15 U.S. foundations will be required to pay out an additional $157-million a year by 1975 to the causes they help, as a result of tax laws coming into effect. This means that, by 1975, forces dedicated to the overthrow of the Republic and its reconstruction as a puppet-state within a totalitarian world super-government, will have gotten enough loot to complete their dirty work. If the U.S. survives with its present form of government, which is already almost no government at all, until 1975, it will be a miracle. Incidentally, this news is so shaped by wordsmiths to make the people believe that the tax-exempt boys are going to get hurt by the IRS. That is not the case at all. All they will be required to do is to spend more and not to cough up income tax.

While the heat generated by the decision of the Supreme Court in the Pentagon Papers Case is allowed to cool down, the Chief Justice, Warren E. Burger, quietly slipped over to Belgrade to attend the Fifth World Conference on World Peace Through World Law. There, he presided over a mock trial which found the United States guilty and liable for damages in a case involving a space ship made by the Japanese, assembled by the Italians, and launched by the U.S. There was a mythical accident in which an Ethiopian diplomat and his son were killed, a Yugoslavian businessman was seriously injured, and a building was destroyed. The mock trial was held before an audience of 3,000 lawyers and judges. Now, there is nothing wrong with the Chief Justice taking a vacation. But, there is certainly something wrong with his attending a world conference sponsored by One Worlders, especially when he was sold to the American electorate as a dyed-in-the-wool Conservative.

When the Liberal Establishment-controlled press goes ga-ga over a guy they've been pounding at ever since he took office, look for a kicker. Much is being ballyhooed these days about Nixon's breakthrough with Red China, perhaps because Kissinger, the swinger, swung the deal with Chou in Peking. But, the fact still remains that when it comes to doing business with Mao, Nixon, if really sincere, is dreaming while wearing knee pants. Let's look at the record. Washington has yet to come out of any negotiations with the Soviets with its shirt intact and, most assuredly, it will lose its pants with Mao.

Let there be no more illusions about it: our so-called "leadership" hasn't got what it takes any more to stand up to the Sino-Soviets and drive home a hard bargain favorable to the best interests of the nation and of the American people. This is due to the fact that government by-pressure groups have killed American leadership capabilities. Prediction: Peking is going to lay down a hard line and Nixon's trip there, if made at all, will turn out to be a flop. Another juicy item: Nixon may have done a little wooing among the starry eyed Liberals, but his Peking ploy may yet backfire at the polls in 1972.

It is reported that the U.S. has trimmed down its first-step, strategic arms curb offer to the Soviets in an effort to speed prospects for an agreement. Washington has proposed a freeze on offensive missiles such as ICBMs, missile-firing subs, and the like. Moscow could very well go along with this offer because, now, there is really nothing to lose. The Soviets have already outstripped us in the arms race. So a freeze at this point in the chess match doesn't really mean a thing. Moscow holds the lead anyway. In the meantime, under terrible pressure, Washington is going along with the suicidal attempt to strip our defenses down to the bone. If this were tried by any pressure group in the Soviet Union, the whole lot would be put up against a wall and pockmarked with bullets.

Evidently working in cahoots with Washington to take the pressure off of the Israelis, King Hussein ordered his forces to annihilate the Palestinian guerrilla units on Jordanian soil. Thus, a split is being forced in the Arab front against Israel. Following the Jordanian assault, the Palestinian guerrilla movement called on all Arab countries to sever diplomatic and economic relations with Jordan and to expel the Amman government from the Arab League. Hussein's actions may yet cost him his throne and lots of nice, juicy, American loot. Meanwhile, peace is out of the question in the Middle East no matter who says what to the contrary.

Sometime ago, Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of The Arizona Republic, wrote and published an editorial entitled: "Stop It, America, Before It's Too Late!" In it, he pleaded with "anti-Americans" to stop sniping at our government, and went on to say that, inasmuch as we are living in "the most wonderful nation on earth," she doesn't deserve criticism. The point is well taken, but there is a flaw in his logic. According to Mr. Pulliam, all those who snipe at Washington are anti-Americans. This is based on the assumption that only the Reds do such nasty things. He's wrong, of course. Right wingers do the same. In fact, in this, right-wingism has a lot in common with left-wingism. However, there is a fundamental difference between the two kinds of gripes. Concerned Americans hurl spears at Washington because they know that it is in the hands of the Liberal Establishment which is hell-bent on converting what little is left of the original Republic into a socialist state. The Reds, and their fellow travelers, hurl bricks from the other side because they want to become the fat cats while converting the nation into a Soviet America. True, the past is prologue. We are experiencing today what Czarist Russia went through just before the Bolsheviks evicted the Social Democrats. The Russian right wing lost that battle, too.

Invariably, too much of the same old thing not only becomes monotonous, but nauseating as well. Now, Harold I. Sims, the acting executive director of the National Urban League claims that the greatest danger facing blacks in the U.S. is the possibility of a massive repression by a general society frustrated over national and international failures. Because of these failures, says Mr. Sims, "there is the danger that they (the majority) will continue to blame the victims like in Nazi Germany rather than work toward solutions of the problems." This is all a lot of bunk, of course. What nation in this crazy world has ever done so much for so few, as the U.S. has done for the black minority? In fact, being a black American today is like having money in the bank. But, if there is going to be a massive repression, Black America can blame it upon the small minority within their community who, thinking that Civil Rights means the right to steal, murder, and destroy, have gone berserk over the idea. What's more, the "Nazi Germany" ploy is old hat. False accusations of Neo-Nazism no longer stimulate applause and support. On the contrary, it stimulates contempt.

End of the Line for Zionism

and life only, race-quality and the triumph of the will-to-power — and not the victory of truths, principles, or money which signifies."

In the nineteenth century the Jew was in his natural element. He swam with the nineteenth century like a fish in water. In this century the Jew is like a fish on dry land. The Jew's journalistic, literary, intellectual, and financial power are doomed to fall on this chill, bleak plateau of Twentieth Century reality. Still, the Zionists have acquired the HABIT of power, and they will not give it up willingly. Only disaster will chastise them suitably.

Disaster will not be long in coming. Today the Soviet Union is implacably hostile toward American Zionism. No better description of this hostility exists than that found in Francis Parker Yockey's FOUR ESSAYS. Yockey observed the decline of American Jewish power and the rise of Russian power in the world: "The basic reason for the diminution of power is spiritual-organize. Power will never stay in the hands of him who does not want power and has no plan for its use. Desire for revenge, desire to stop Hitler, desire to destroy Europe, desire to kill 80,000,000 Germans by the Morgenthau plan—all these are not will-to-power. Will-to-power inherently means the will to do something positive with power, not the will to prevent something.

"The more superficial and direct reason for the diminution of power was the political incapacity of the Zionists, or Washington regime as it is here interchangeably called. This incapacity manifested itself first in total incomprehension of the Russian soul, leading to the belief that this wild, chaotic spirituality had surrendered itself permanently to the guidance of a small group of Jewish intellectuals."

In fact, the whole Zionist view of power-exercise is fundamentally defective. As Yockey says, "A person who believes that the seizing of the apparatus of power — government, army, police, press, education — guarantees the continuance of power is a political non-entity." Yet the whole Washington regime believes this. In philosophy they are materialists and thus cannot understand that visible facts are only the manifestation of invisible spiritual movements."

The truth is the the battle for POWER today is a battle between the Zionists on one hand and the Russians on the other. We wish that somebody represented the American People on this scene, but nobody does. An old adage says that "God takes care of fools, drunkards, and the United States." We hope indeed that the Deity will indeed take care of the United States, since it appears that nobody else will do so.

Zionism is on its last legs. The Rockefellers, once happy allies of the Zionists, now are alarmed over the prospect of disaster and loss in the Middle East. Behind the scenes in New York and Washington, a terrific battle rages over the Middle East policy. The book DAVID may or may not tell the real truth about David Rockefeller; in any case it is merely a salvo in the intellectual battle which rages between the American Zionists and their erstwhile Goy allies. In Washington the Zionists appear still to have the upper hand. Their funny little errand boy, Nixon, will go running over to Red China, to try to cement a weakling alliance against Russia. With Nixon's trip to China, American policy sinks to a new low level of ignominy. It is not merely that crimes are being committed; we might live with that; but these things are worse than crimes; they are BLUNDERS! They are blunders of appalling magnitude.

We are witnessing not only the downfall of Zionism. It is likely now that any who'some ordering of human affairs lies on the far side of a great disaster. "The Powers" which rule over us today cannot give any warranties which an intelligent man will accept. Personally, I don't care if "Trickie Dickie" goes to Red China; I sort of wish he would stay there. It might be the right place for him.
